So I think a lot of you are confused about my whole family thing that happened recently so.... to undergo a major
In order of things that have happened
Age 4: I got a back injury and during an X-Ray they discovered I had scoliosis
12/2/18: Scoliosis surgery
12/14/18: I got picked up from the hospital. This was before my older siblings lived with us so the younger twins were at daycare and Nacho and Ben came to pick me up. While we were gone, there was a fire at my house. My triplet sister was all alone, and she died.
Then: (this is all a blur)
Nacho got hit
He got casts
His collarbone got infected
He went to Georgia to undergo a major surgery
During that time, 2 of our dogs died.
I found out our parents are getting divorced.
So: I guess I won't have very fond memories of ages 11 and 12

So Phil, eat it if you must, but it includes fire and death so it won't taste too good.

if you've had scoliosis since age 4, and they waited 8 years for surgery, did they ever give you a brace? and what degree was the curve? it sounds severe

I'm so sorry to hear that Pluto, that sounds very awful. I hope your back can heal overtime, and that Nacho recovers as well. I wish I could give you hug through this screen right now. I've been through quite a lot too and so I understand, of course I won't be able to ever feel what it is you feel as I'm sure no one will. I really wish there is something I can do for you, I know you don't know me that well but I know you through reading all of your posts. I pray things will get better for you, and I'm sorry life has been this suckish to you. Wishing you the best, Tiger.

Yeah it was severe. I had a brace from age 6-10 but you couldn't see it so most didn't know I had it. The degree was 59 which is really...bad.

im so sorry, 59 degrees is terrible. a small brace seems odd though, mine's big and bulky

Mine was like a prosthetic leg. I wore it under my clothes, and it moved with me.

I thought braces were supposed to stop your back from moving while it healed. What kind of brace was it? I know there's a bunch of different kinds. One of my friends has/had severe scoliosis like you and I'm just curious because I don't think their brace moved with them, they'd be so annoyed if there was a flexible option lol

It was before I had surgery.
